I followed up with a call to Versar. They checked and determined that I was registered. However, they indicated others had also had some problems.

There is also a technical problem with the last section which requires one to type something in the comment box for special requirements, even if one checks "no" for the need for "special requirements." Versar claims they are aware of the problem and are working on it.

Versar does not seem to be off to a very good start.

Subject: Registering for the peer review session

Dennis and Rick,

In attempting to register for the peer review session today, I received the following message after submitting the form, so I don't know if I am registered. I will be calling Versar, but I thought you should know of the problem.

John.
